market commentary

The Japanese equity market faced significant headwinds in the fourth quarter of 2018, as an escalation of global risk factors propelled a sharp downshift in investor sentiment. Tightening financial conditions in the US, concerns over the momentum of global growth, the threat of a US-China trade war, and political tensions in Europe created a persistent sense of uncertainty. As risk-off pressure spread across asset markets, the fourth quarter marked the steepest decline since the global financial crisis ten years ago. Although the global economy continued to grow and corporate earnings at Japanese companies remained on a moderate uptrend, sector returns displayed a clear tilt towards defensive and domestic-oriented groups.

risk rating

Very Low Low Low/Medium Medium Medium/High High Very High

All investments carry a level of risk. You need to decide how much of each type of risk you're prepared to take. The table below gives an overview of some of the risks associated with this fund.

risk type	description of risk	level of risk for this fund
Capital Risk	This is the risk that the value of your investments will fall. The younger you are, the less worried you might be about capital risk, because your investments have time to recover their value before your retire.	High
Inflation Risk	This is the risk that the value of your investments will grow more slowly than prices rise. Inflation can be a problem for pension savings invested in cash funds particularly if the interest you're earning is less than the rate of inflation.	Med
Pension Conversion Risk	The price of an annuity changes on a regular basis. This means that the amount of income you can secure with the same amount of money will change. Pension conversion risk is the risk that the amount of income you can buy drops before you retire, because your money is invested differently to annuity funds. That's why putting more of your DC pension pot into bonds to try to match annuity prices as you get closer to retirement age can help protect against this risk.	High
